Reflection

It's been said that the only constant in life is change... recent events here in Victoria highlight the need to respond to the ever changing world we are part of...

This summer we have seen horrific bushfires, followed by damaging floods. While globally the Coronavirus is affecting so many. For many people their worlds have been severely disrupted. We'll all have friends, colleagues, neighbours or acquaintances who will be trying to get back to some sense of normality.

In the midst of all this I recall the words of the Prophet Jeremiah, who writing to a group of people whose world had been completely turned upside down says,... 'seek the Shalom of the place where you are, in seeking its shalom you'll find your own' I find these words a call to action for us as Christians. A call to seek the Shalom of our country, State, neighbourhoods.

How might we go about seeking the shalom of where we are?

- Ian

Pax Christi Victoria

Invitation

Pax Christi Study/Working Group Peace and Ecology

Following the Earth@Peace conference in 2019, Geoff Lacey and Catriona Devlin are convening a group to pursue the theological and philosophical foundations for the care of Earth's ecosystems as a pathway to Just and Sustainable Peace.

This is an important part of Pax Christi Victoria's programme for 2020 and beyond. We want to involve a broad cross section of concerned people.

To begin with, the group will function as a monthly study group, using the book:

Elizabeth A. Johnson, Ask the beasts: Darwin and the God of love. (2014)
[This can be bought on-line from Book Depository for about $25.]

Initial meeting: Tuesday 25 February (2.00 pm–4.00 pm)

Venue: Kildara Centre, rear 41 Stanhope Street, Malvern

The discussion on this first occasion will be on Norman Habel's foreword (The Way of Things! Earth Wisdom and Climate Change) in the book: Climate Change: Cultural Change: Religious Responses and Responsibilities (edited by Anne Elvey & David Gormley O'Brien, 2013). (Copies of this foreword will be made available on request.)

If you would like to take part in the group, please contact:

Catriona – 9509 7906

PNG Government Pressures the Australian Government to remove Refugees from Manus Island

The Uniting Church and its members and supporters, such as yourselves, have advocated for an end to offshore processing of people seeking asylum in Australia. In late July, the new government in Papua New Guinea called for the "full closure" of the asylum seeker process on Manus Island. Manus province Governor, Charlie Benjamin, said all the refugees should be resettled elsewhere as soon as possible. He pointed out they had been at the facilities for seven years.

Australian Student Christian Movement

Opinion and reflection

Review of Alan Demack, Pulpit, Pew and Public Life

Alan Demack AO, Pulpit, Pew and Public Life: The Christian and the Secular Nation, MediaCom Education Inc, Unley, S.A., 2019

Alan Demack's memoir entitled Pulpit, Pew and Public Life takes the reader, firstly, on a journey through the author's formative years which were deeply influenced by the Australian Student Christian Movement. He expresses a deep appreciation for the inspiration of his Christian discipleship provided by such fine theologians as J. H. Oldham, Dietrich Bonhoeffer and Emil Brunner. (On pages 181-184 he provides an extensive list of a wider range of Christian contributors.)

Alan studied law at the University of Queensland (1953-57) and in time he became a barrister and then a judge.

In 1976 Alan was appointed a Senior Judge of the Family Court of Australia. In 1978 he was appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Queensland and Central Judge.

He served as a judge in Queensland for some 28 years, and even in retirement has been active in being a valued consultant in regard to important legal issues.

Nurtured in the Methodist Church, Alan and his wife Dorothy (whom he met at a National ASCM Conference in Armidale) have been very active members of the Uniting Church of Australia. Alan also contributes as a lay preacher in the Uniting Church. As well, both Alan and Dorothy have maintained a lifetime of support for ASCM.

This book explores the interplay of law, theology, ethics and public life in the context of living in a 'secular nation'. It contains many insights and thoughtful reflections on the inter-relation of those important dimensions of Australian experience. The book repays thoughtful reading.

Available for $22.95 from MediaCom.

Prayers For Nation

Faith Communities gather at Parliament house in Melbourne to reflect, remember and prayer for all Victorians and all Australians affected by the recent Bushfires

Child Protection Unit, Department of Health and Human Services

Reporting to protect children

Mandatory reporting is about protecting children. Children can carry the trauma of abuse for years, unless they get help. They need the adults around them to report child abuse and neglect.

You might have noticed some media attention in September this year about new laws passed by the Victorian parliament to do with reporting child abuse. The media focussed on priests, but actually the law will cover people in religious ministry in the various faiths across Victoria.

If you are ordained, appointed or recognised as a religious or spiritual leader a religious organisation, this new law will apply to you. You will become a mandatory reporter to Child Protection in early 2020.

If a mandatory reporter believes a child might be at risk of physical injury or sexual abuse and their parents are not protecting them, they have to report what they believe to Child Protection as soon as they can, even if information came through religious confession.

To make a report you do not need to be sure or have any proof. You just need to be genuinely worried the child might be at risk. It is up to Child Protection to decide what to do. Your identity will be confidential, and the law protects you from any liability if the report is made in good faith.

Child Protection workers are trained to assess risk to children from child abuse and neglect. They will decide what to do about what they are told. They might give you some information and advice. They might refer the family for support. They might investigate the report. They can do what is needed to protect the child. Often, Child Protection can arrange the help parents need to keep their children safe. Sometimes children might need Child Protection to step in to protect them.

Find out more on the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) website <https://providers.dhhs.vic.gov.au/mandatory-reporting> - or search 'mandatory reporting victoria'

There will be free information sessions about mandatory reporting for people in religious ministry early next year. Bookings will open soon. Keep an eye on the mandatory reporting website.
